1959 AND THE CYCLONES

It's 1959 and it's Iowa State University. Will a new year and a new name bring newness to football and the Cyclones?

Like the professor says: "That's a good question, young man, shall we go on to something else?"

Unlike the professor, though, we need to give something of an answer right now. It is August and the 40-some football candidates for the Iowa State team are in the final stages of pre-season conditioning. The Fourth Estate is unlimbering typewriters and cameras. We've got to have some kind of an answer when the question is asked: What about Iowa State this fall?

There are some thoughts in the minds of Head Coach Clay Stapleton and his staff, naturally. Clay sums it up sort of like this:

"We have too few seniors and too few juniors and too many sophomores to be a good football team. There is just not enough experience on hand. Yet there is more. I am not trying to confuse the issue. We do not have enough experience in depth. But we will not have to depend upon inexperienced starters as we did a year ago. Our depth must come from sophomores, which is not good. But a year ago we started as many as eight first year men AND our sophomores also gave us depth—in fact, they just about carried it all for us.

"This year we can start experienced men in almost every position. We have four seniors and 11 juniors along with 27 sophomores.

"Overall we should be a little stronger. We'll be somewhat bigger. We will not have to make the personnel shifts that we did last fall. We settled on positions this spring. We know who will play where now.

"This should be a season of progress. If we can get as much in the way of effort from this group as we did last year—and no team ever gave more of its ability—then we should be an improved club. We are still a year or so away from being a good football team."

From the top 32 men of 1958, Stapleton lost five from the first team, six from the second team, and six from the third team. That's 17 of 32 men, leaving 15 for the basis of the 1959 team. A number of those men have been shifted to new positions. Tom Ferrebee was a tackle, now is a guard. Jerry Schoenfelder was a guard, is now a tackle. Don Webb was a wingback, now he'll play right end. Tom Watkins played both wingback and end. He's a fullback for 1959. Chuck Lamson was a fullback, now he's a tailback.

At this stage of planning for 1959 Stapleton figures his team will be stronger in 1959, position-wise, except at left guard and wingback. Inexperience is the main weakness at those two spots, however. Ability-wise they may prove to be stronger than anticipated.

Possibly there is more speed, too, in the makeup of the 1959 team. Not just in any one spot, either. The impression during spring drills was that everyone was running just a bit faster.

A prediction for 1959? Well, let's say that the Cyclones of Iowa State University will be bigger, faster, well-conditioned, well-disciplined, aggressive, even a bit eager. They'll give 60 full minutes of the best football they can produce. And they won't finish last!

THE COACHING STAFF

Clay Stapleton
Head Coach

Starting his second season in charge of football at Iowa State, Stapleton sees no reason to be pessimistic, sees no reason to figure his team will challenge for the title.

"We'll carry the battle to the other fellow for 60 minutes every game. We'll give everything we have as players and coaches. We'll cause trouble."

That might be a summary of prospects for 1959 but actually it is a capsule on Clay Stapleton and his way of football. You could never get him to admit the other fellow could whip him—or his team. He'll make fight and desire do where the ability is short. He'll have his team firing out just as hard at the end of the game as it did at the opening whistle.

A former Tennessee guard—No. 37—Stapleton won three football letters in college. He had collected a total of 11 high school letters at Fleming, Ky., including five in football. He captained his high school football team as a sophomore and again as a senior.

At Tennessee he interrupted his education to serve four years in the Navy. He graduated from Tennessee in 1948 with majors in physical education and history.

His coaching career began in the fall of 1948 at Wofford college in Spartanburg, S. C.

He served five years there under Phil Dickens and then followed Dickens to Wyoming in 1953. He had two more seasons there and then in 1955 he was called to Oregon State when Tommy Prothro left UCLA to help build football fortunes at Corvallis. He was Tommy's No. 1 assistant but the huge ex-Duke star made no bones about it that he expected to lose Stapleton to a head coach job in short order. He was a good prophet. After helping with a Rose Bowl team and a pair of conference titles, Stapleton became head coach at Iowa State on February 1, 1958.

It will long be a day to remember for Clay and Edith Stapleton. And it will be a tossup as to whether the head coach job or the confirmation of adoption of a pretty little blonde will rank as the top thrill. Just let it suffice that Feb. 1 will always be real important for the Stapletons.

Clay Stapleton is an honest, straight forward man and coach. His friends make a point of telling you that you "never have to guess where you stand with Clay Stapleton."

Stapleton wants that same type of football from his players—straight from the shoulder play from conditioned, disciplined players.

Stapleton coaches the single wing—which is almost redundant. What old Tennessee player wouldn't! Especially a guard. But he knows it, likes, believes in it and has always been successful with it.

Stapleton was born June 24, 1921, in Durham, Ky. He graduated from Fleming high in 1939 and from Tennessee in 1948. He married Edith Tucker in 1941. He is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 200 pounds.

Lou McCullough
First Assistant Coach

Indiana asked Stapleton to comment on Lou McCullough when Phil Dickens took over for the Hoosiers three years ago. He backed McCullough to the limit for the job but made this his final statement:

"When I become a head coach McCullough will be the first man I'll try to hire away from you."

Stapleton wasn't fooling. McCullough's appointment came right on the heels of the announcement of hiring Stapleton.

McCullough played under Stapleton at Wofford for a year and then coached along side him at Wofford and at Wyoming. They are an excellent team, seemingly united in action and thought.

McCullough was born May 17, 1925, in Florence, Ala. He graduated from Coffee high there in 1943 with 8 letters in football, baseball, basketball and tennis. He attended Georgia Military college and then transferred to Wofford where he earned 11 letters in football, basketball, baseball, track and tennis. He was captain of the tennis and basketball teams. He received his M.A. degree from Columbia university in 1951. He is 5 feet 9 inches and weighs 172.

His coaching career includes a basketball stint at Spartanburg, S. C., high school, four years at Wofford, four years at Wyoming, and a year each at Indiana and Iowa State.

McCullough married Bette Alice Stribling in 1951. They have three children: Elizabeth Ann 7, Jefferson Lee 4, and Daniel Hudson 1.

Burnie Miller

Assistant Coach

Another old friend of his head coach, Miller first attended the University of Tennessee and then transferred to Wofford to graduate there in 1952. He played his final seasons under Stapleton at Wofford. After three years in the Army, Miller followed the Wofford staff to Wyoming and then went to Indiana. He finally caught up with Clay again when he came to the Iowa State campus in the spring of 1958.

Miller was born April 1, 1928, in Portsmouth, Va. He graduated from Woodrow Wilson high school there in 1947 with letters in football, basketball and baseball. After two years at Tennessee he switched to Wofford and graduated in 1952. He earned three football letters. He coached as an assistant at Fort Benning, Ga., and with the 82nd Airbourne at Fort Bragg, N. C. He was the head coach at Fort Bragg his second season there. During his service period he had 29 jumps as a paratrooper.

Coming out of the service he rejoined his old coach, Phil Dickens, at Wyoming, then moved with him to Indiana. He rejoined Stapleton in Ames in the spring of 1958.

Miller is married to the former Dawn Sheahan.

Arch Steel
Assistant Coach

Arch is the veteran of the Cyclone football staff. He is starting his sixth season on the staff. He served as freshman coach under Vince DiFrancesca and Jim Myers. Last year he was a member of the varsity staff under Stapleton.

Steel was born in Galston, Scotland, Jan. 28, 1918. He grew up in the River Rouge, Mich., school system, graduating from high school there in 1936 with 4 letters in football and basketball. He graduated from Bowling Green, Ohio, University in 1940 with 8 letters in football, basketball and baseball. He earned a masters degree from the University of Michigan.

Steel coached at Lincoln Park, Mich.; Michigan State Normal college and Corcoran, Cal., high school, before coming to Iowa State in the spring of 1954. He is 5 feet 8 inches, and weighs 157.

He married Agnes MacKenzie of Oakland, Cal., in 1944. They have one daughter, Jan, age 9.

Bob Ward
Assistant Coach

Ward came to Iowa State and Clay Stapleton to learn—and is staying to teach. He was raised in the T formation school of football but wanted to know the single wing before he moved up as a head coach on his own. He has learned it well and teaches it well.

He was twice an All-American guard at Maryland.

Ward was born in Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 16, 1927. He earned eight letters in football, basketball and track at Thomas Jefferson high in Elizabeth, graduating in 1946. He won four letters in football, two in track at Maryland and twice made all-American in football. His previous coaching career had been at Maryland. He also sold insurance on a part-time basis for a couple of years.

Ward was in the Army during 1946-47, and graduated from Maryland in 1952. He was football co-captain at Maryland. He is 5 feet 11, weighs 187 pounds.

He married Ellen Zalesac of Union, N. J., in 1950. The couple has four children: James 9; Kathleen 8; Robert 6 and Kelly 2.

Ernie Zwahlen
Assistant Coach

Zwahlen is the youngest member of the staff both in age and experience. He was born July 22, 1935, in Portland, Ore. He is 6 feet 2, and weighs 210 pounds.

Zwahlen played on the PCC championship team of 1957 that played in the Rose Bowl.

He was graduated from Union high school, Beaverton, Ore., in 1953 with 10 letters in football, baseball, basketball and golf. He graduated from Oregon State in 1957 with a pair of football letters. Served as a graduate assistant coach at Oregon State while working on his masters degree. He is continuing that study at Iowa State and plans to finish the degree at Oregon State next year.

Warren (Floogie) Ariail
Athletic Trainer

Here is one of the most important cogs in Clay Stapleton's football machinery. All the coaches have given him much credit for holding together the small band of Cyclone players last year—a unit that often numbered less than 30 available players. He is recognized as one of the nation's top performers in his field.

He is a great entertainer, too. Which makes him highly popular as a lecturer in his chosen field at coaching clinics.

Floogie was born April 8, 1924, in Eutawville, S. C. He graduated from the McColl, S. C., high school in 1941. At Wofford he majored in business administration but his real love and his eventual career came in being the student trainer for Wofford. He continued after graduation. He took special physio-therapy training at Eastern Medical Aids in New York. Moved from Wofford to Wake Forest as trainer in 1955. Floogie is another former associate of his boss, having served him at Wofford before coming to Ames last year.

Floogie is a Marine, serving in the Pacific from 1942 through 1946. He married Sue Beam of Gaffney, S. C., in 1947. They have two girls, Deborah Sue 9, and Phyllis Clayton 2.

Gordon (Slim) Chalmers
Athletic Director

Slim is new to Iowa State University and its huge sports family but that is a condition that will not last long. He is on the move all the time to enlarge his acquaintanceship and his knowledge of the friends and alumni of Iowa State.

Chalmers is charged with the job of building up all phases of the athletic department. He is ably qualified for that building program, both by desire and by experience. For nearly 14 years he was the assistant athletic director at West Point, working with Col. Earl Blaik during that period. He knows what must be done here at Iowa State and you don't have to be around him long to get the notion that he'll get the job done.

Chalmers is a champion himself, has associated with champions and has developed his own. A National Collegiate champion and Olympic performer in the 1931-34 period in swimming, he developed winners in more than 70 percent of his meets in the strong Ivy league. That league, he points out, was headed in swimming by Yale.

"I never beat Yale—nobody did, Chalmers explained.

Born in Cranford, N. J. on Feb. 24, 1911, Chalmers was graduated from East Orange, N. J. high school in 1930 and from Franklin & Marshall in 1935 with a BS degree in business with his major in accounting. It was at F & M that he got his first contact with Iowa State—Charley Mayser was there and no Cyclone has to be told about Mayser. But he told Slim plenty about Iowa State.

Following graduation Chalmers worked as a time study engineer for four years and then turned to college coaching in 1940-41 as the swimming coach at Lafayette. A year later he was the swimming coach at Lehigh. Then from 1942 to 1946 he was in the Navy, serving on a carrier in the Pacific as a lieutenant commander. He returned to Lehigh for part of a year after the war but in 1946 went to West Point as assistant athletic director and swimming coach.

It is perhaps significant that his team pulled an upset in his final meet of his coaching career that winter to topple a favored Navy team—just to give the Slim One a final remembrance of his fine career at The Point.

Chalmers married Helen Schermerhorn of Lake George, N. Y., in 1941. They have two daughters: Margo, 14; and Donna, 9.

THE BIG EIGHT

Unquestionably the best all-around conference in the nation with more National Collegiate titles divided among its members than any other loop. Lots of top rankings every year: Oklahoma in top ten in football, Kansas State the No. 1 poll team in basketball; Oklahoma State NCAA titles in wrestling and baseball; Kansas NCAA track champions; Iowa State and Oklahoma 2-3 in wrestling. You name it, the Big Eight has it.

Originally the conference was the Missouri Valley Conference. In 1928 Iowa State, Kansas State, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma withdrew to form the Missouri Valley Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, dubbed Big Six by sports writers.

In 1948 the conference became the Big Seven when Colorado was voted in. Last year Oklahoma State rejoined its old Missouri Valley friends to make the loop the Big Eight.

Conference titles are settled in football, cross country, basketball, swimming, wrestling, indoor and outdoor track, baseball, golf and tennis. In addition, the conference has a pre-season basketball tournament in Kansas City each year.

IOWA STATE UNIVERSITY

Iowa State University succeeded 100-year old Iowa State college on July 4, 1959. The full title now is Iowa State University of Science and Technology. The University has for its province the fields of science and technology and in the 100 years since its founding has grown to be recognized as one of the finest of educational institutions.

Located at Ames, a city of 27,800 almost exactly in the center of the state, it has an enrollment of 10,000.

Since Iowa is primarily an agricultural state, it isn't strange that Iowa State University has a national and even international reputation for its teaching and research in agriculture. It ranks equally high in the area of Veterinary Medicine.

The University was a pioneer in the teaching of home economics, and today this university is the oldest as well as one of the most highly regarded in the world.

Nevertheless, the largest single group on campus is composed of engineering students. Wide industrial demand for engineers has boomed the enrollment in the College of Engineering in recent years. In engineering education Iowa State is known both for the quality and the quantity of its product.

No technical institution can progress without strong emphasis on the basic sciences. Iowa State stresses chemistry, physics and the biological sciences. The Atomic Energy Commission recognized the strength of the ISU science faculty following outstanding achievements by its members in the nuclear research program of World War II. Today Iowa State is one of the nine colleges designated as major research laboratories for the AEC.

President of the Iowa State University is Dr. James H. Hilton, a graduate of Iowa State. Long recognized for leadership in North Carolina's agricultural program, Dr. Hilton returned to his Alma Mater five years ago to take rank with the nation's outstanding college leaders.
